

National Yang Ming Chiao Tung University
Guidelines on Computers and Internet Communication Usage Fees for Students

Approved by the 1st interim administrative meeting of the 2021 Academic Year (July 20, 2022)

Article 1 The Guidelines for Charging Students for Using Computers and the Internet (hereafter the Guidelines) were formulated in accordance with Announcement No. 0970167294C from the Ministry of Education.

Article 2 The Guidelines were formulated by the NYCU Information Technology Service Center (hereafter the Center) to provide a high-quality, stable Internet usage environment and to promote respect for intellectual property rights and the use of legal software through the user pays principle.

Article 3 Computer and Internet communication usage fees are used to support and pay for the network-related expenses of NYCU, software licensing fees, school administration systems, and information technology research and instruction, other uses must be approved by the President.

Article 4 Payment methods:

(1) All NYCU students, including those in a Master's program or an Industrial Master's program, shall be charged NT$1,000 each for each semester of use. The fee shall be paid with the student's registration fee. However, those who fulfill the following conditions are exempt from this requirement:

1. Off-campus interns: No fees shall be applied for students in full-time off-campus internships.

2. Students with special needs: No fees shall be applied for students with low household incomes, indigenous students, students with severe physical or mental disabilities, and the children of such students.

(2) Exchange students who are abroad and do not need to use software authorized by the university may apply for exemption from paying the fees.

Article 5 The income and expenditure specified in the Guidelines shall be managed as a special fund under the category of "Computer and Internet Communication Usage Fees."

Article 6 The Guidelines and revisions thereof shall come into effect after receiving approval from the Administrative Meeting.